

Series: The Jewel Fairies

Book: Amy the Amethyst Fairy

Ready for Adventure

“Kirsty, we’re here!” Rachel Walker announced, looking out of the car window. She pointed at a large sign that read WELCOME TO TIPPINGTON MANOR.

Kirsty Tate, Rachel’s best friend, was peering up at the cloudy sky. “I hope it doesn’t rain,” she said. Then the house caught her eye. “Oh, look, Rachel, there’s the house! Isn’t it beautiful?”

At the bottom of the long gravel driveway stood Tippington Manor. It was a huge Victorian house with an enormous wooden door, rows of tall windows, and old red bricks covered with ivy. The house was surrounded by gardens full of flowers and trees, their autumn leaves glowing in shades of red and gold.

“Look over there, Kirsty,” Rachel said as Mr. Walker turned the car into the parking lot. “A playground!”

Kirsty looked where Rachel was pointing and spotted the playground on a hill behind the house. She could see some tires swings, a silver slide, and what looked like a big wooden tree house in the middle, built around a tall oak tree.

“Isn’t it great?” Kirsty whispered to Rachel as they climbed out of the car, “The fairies would love that tree house!”

Rachel grinned and nodded. She and Kirsty knew just what the fairies would like, because they were friends with them! Whenever there was trouble in Fairyland, the two girls tried to help.

www.rainbowmagiconline.com

RAINBOW magic™

The fairies' biggest problem was Jack Frost. He had recently stolen the seven magic jewels from the Queen of Fairyland's crown. Because the gems controlled much of the magic in Fairyland, greedy Jack Frost had wanted them for himself. But when the glowing heat and light of the jewels had started to melt his ice castle, Jack Frost had angrily tossed them out into the human world.

The fairies had asked Rachel and Kirsty to help them find the jewels and return them to the queen's crown. But Jack Frost had sent his mean goblins to guard the gems, which made getting them back a whole lot harder.

Read the rest of Amy the Amethyst Fairy to find out what magic is in store for Rachel and Kirsty at Tippington Manor!

www.rainbowmagiconline.com