Cooking Up A Storm

'Here's the recipe, Kirsty,' Rachel Walker said, showing the cookery book to her best friend Kirsty Tate. 'Don't they look yummy?'

Kirsty looked at the picture and nodded. 'I love gingerbread men!' she said.

'Gran always bakes gingerbread men for my birthday,' Rachel explained. 'So I thought we could make some for her as she's coming to tea today.' She laughed as her shaggy dog Buttons trotted into the kitchen and looked up at the two girls hopefully. 'Buttons likes them too!'

At that moment Mrs Walker, Rachel's mum, followed Buttons into the room. 'Gran will be here soon,' she said.

'We'd better get started, girls. I'll find the cookie cutter. You two collect the ingredients.'

'OK, Mum,' Rachel agreed. 'I'll get the eggs. Kirsty, could you get the flour? It's in that cupboard near the sink.'

Rachel opened the fridge and Kirsty went to find the flour.

Meanwhile, Mrs Walker was searching through the drawers for the cookie cutter.

'Mum, we haven't got any eggs,' Rachel called, her head still inside the fridge.

'And there isn't any flour in the cupboard,' added Kirsty, moving aside packets and boxes to check.

'That's funny,' Mrs Walker said, shaking her head. 'I thought we had plenty of both. And I'm sure I saw the cookie cutter only a few days ago.' She frowned.
