Book: Megan the Monday Fairy

The Fairies Send Francis

'I'm glad I'm staying with you for half-term,' Kirsty Tate told her friend, Rachel Walker, as they came out of Fashion Fun, the accessories shop on Tippington High Street. 'And I hope these sparkly clips will look nice with my new hairstyle!'

'I'm sure they will,' Rachel said cheerfully. 'They're so pretty.'
'Thanks,' Kirsty replied. 'I wonder how the fairies are,' she added, lowering her voice.

Rachel and Kirsty shared a magical secret: when they had first met on a very special holiday to Rainspell Island, they had become friends with the fairies!

'I hope Jack Frost and his goblins are behaving themselves,' Rachel said. Cold, spiteful Jack Frost and his mean goblin servants often caused trouble for the fairies, and the girls had helped their tine friends outwit Jack Frost many times.

'Look, Rachel!' Kirsty said, peering into a nearby window. 'This shop wasn't open last time I was here. Isn't it lovely?'

The shop was called Dancing Days, and the window was full of shoes. There were white tutus with gauzy net skirts, satin ballet slippers with pink ribbons and sparkly tap shoes.

'I'd love to be able to tap dance,' said Rachel.
Just then the shop door opened and a lady emerged, followed by a girl with long brown hair in a ponytail.
