'You look gorgeous,' Rachel Walker said, looking at her friend Kirsty Tate. 'So do you,' Kirsty replied. The two girls grinned at each other. Kirsty was staying with Rachel for the half-term holiday and they'd been doing all sorts of fun things together. But today, Saturday, was going to be especially exciting.

Rachel's cousin, Caroline, was opening a new boutique in the Rainbow Shopping Centre, and was putting on a fashion show featuring some of the boutique's clothes. Even better, she had asked Rachel and Kirsty to be two of her catwalk models.

'There,' said Anna, the stylist, as she gave a last squirt of hairspray to Rachel's French plait. 'You two are ready. You'd better find Caroline and you're your first outfits on now. The show starts in fifteen minutes.'

Kirsty and Rachel thanked Anna and clambered off their swivel seats. They were in the make-up room, which was part of the makeshift backstage area behind the catwalk.

Just then, Caroline appeared in the doorway. 'Hi girls,' she said. 'You both look great. Let me show you around quickly before the show begins.'

Kirsty and Rachel followed Caroline, both feeling tingly with excitement. The backstage area had been put together with large screens and partitions to make different rooms, and it was a bit of a maze. First, Caroline took them to see how the models would walk onto the catwalk. There were two concealed entrances that led to a long, narrow stage that had been set up in the large lobby of the mall. Bright spotlights beamed down on it, and a cameraman was setting up his equipment.
