Frosty Leaves

“Brrr!” Shivering, Rachel Walker glanced across the bedroom at her best friend, Kirsty Tate, who was just waking up too. “It’s really cold this morning, isn’t it?”

Kirsty yawned and nodded. “It’s freezing,” she agreed. “It’s been getting colder all week.”

“Well, I suppose it is the end of October,” said Rachel. She sat up in bed, wrapping the duvet around her shoulders. “It’ll be winter soon – but I didn’t expect the weather to change quite so fast!”

“Haven’t we had a lovely holiday though, Rachel?” Kirsty sighed happily.

“It’s been so special to come back to Rainspell Island, where we first met.”

The Walkers and the Tates were spending the autumn half-term holiday together in a pretty little cottage on beautiful, magical Rainspell Island.

“Yes, it’s been brilliant!” Rachel smiled. “And we’re even having another fairy adventure, just like we did the first time we visited Rainspell.”

“Only this time it was our turn to ask the fairies for help,” Kirsty pointed out.

When Kirsty and Rachel had returned to Rainspell Island a week ago, they’d been horrified to see the wide, golden beach covered in litter.

So they’d asked the king and queen of Fairyland if their fairy friends could help them to clean up the human environment.

RAINBOW magic™

The king and queen had explained to the girls that fairy magic could only do so much, and that humans had to help the environment, too. But they had agreed that the seven fairies who were about to complete their training could become the Green Fairies for a trial period.

The Green Fairies would work together with Rachel and Kirsty to try to make the world a cleaner place.

If the fairies completed their training successfully, they would become permanent. But just as the Green Fairies were about to be presented with their new wands, Jack Frost and his goblins had zoomed towards them on a ice bolt.

The goblins had snatched all seven wands, and then Jack Frost's icy magic had sent them tumbling away into the human world.

Jack Frost had declared that the world didn't need any more do-gooder fairies, but Rachel and Kirsty had promised they would do their best to get all the wands back into the safe hands of the Green Fairies.

"Wasn't it just like Jack Frost and his naughty goblin servants to steal all the wands?" Kirsty said, shuddering at the memory. "Thank goodness we've managed to find six of them, Rachel."

"Yes, with the help of Nicole, Isabella, Edie, Coral, Lily and Milly," Rachel replied. "But we still have to find Carrie the Snow Cap Fairy's wand."
