A Musical Message

Kirsty Tate folded her jumper and put it into her bag. 'There,' she said to her best friend Rachel Walker. 'I'm all packed.' She looked at the clock on Rachel's bedroom wall. 'Six o'clock already!' Kirsty groaned. 'Mum and Dad will be here to pick me up soon. I can't believe this week is nearly over, can you?'

Rachel shook her head. 'No,' she replied. 'It's gone so quickly. But it's been great fun.'

The girls grinned at one another. Whenever they were together, the two of them always had the most wonderful adventures: fairy adventures! This week, while Kirsty had been staying with Rachel's family for half-term, the girls had been helping the Jewel Fairies find the seven missing magic jewels from Fairy Queen Titania's tiara!

Mean Jack Frost had stolen the gems, and without them, some very important kinds of fairy magic were running low. So far, Kirsty and Rachel had found six of the stolen jewels – but the Diamond was still to be found.

Kirsty frowned. 'I can't help feeling that something's wrong, today,' she said. 'I was sure we'd find the magic Diamond before I had to go home.'

'Me too,' Rachel agreed. 'And we haven't even seen a fairy yet. I wonder if they're all trapped in Fairyland.'
