Musical Mayhem

‘Kirsty, you’re a brilliant dancer!’ Rachel Walker smiled, clapping her hands as her friend took a bow. Kirsty had just finished practicing the ballet steps she would be performing later that evening.

‘It would look even better tonight, with the other dancers and the proper costumes,’ Kirsty replied with a grin. ‘And wait until you hear the lovely music.’

Rachel was staying with her best friend, Kirsty Tate, for the week. That evening, the girls were going to the village hall for a special occasion – the first anniversary of Kirsty’s ballet school.

‘It’s going to be a great party,’ Kirsty went on. ‘My ballet teacher is decorating the hall and organizing some games, and all the parents are bringing food.’

‘It sounds fun,’ Rachel agreed. ‘But if it’s a party, then we’ll have to be on the lookout for goblins!’

Kirsty nodded. She and Rachel shared a magical secret: they were friends with the fairies! But, right now, there were problems in Fairyland and Kirsty and Rachel had promised to help.

The fairies were planning a surprise celebration for the 1000th jubilee of the Fairy King and Queen. It was meant to be taking place in five days’ time, and the Party Fairies were in charge of making it as special as possible using their party bags of magical fairy dust.

But nasty Jack Frost had other plans.
