Book: Georgia the Guinea Pig Fairy

Farmyard Fun

'This must be one of the cutest animals in the whole of Strawberry Farm!' Rachel Walker declared, her eyes shining. She stroked the woolly lamb in her arms. 'He's so cuddly!'

'And hungry too,' her best friend, Kirsty Tate, chuckled. She tilted up the bottle of milk she was holding to feed the lamb, under the watchful eye of a farmhand. 'He's nearly finished already!'

'He's making me thirsty, just watching him!' her mum said, as the lamb drained the last few drops.

Rachel was staying with Kirsty's family for a week over the Easter holidays. This afternoon, they were having a great time at Strawberry Farm. They had already seen a troop of tiny ducklings venturing out for their first swim on the pond, and enjoyed a pony ride on a sturdy little brown Shetland called Conker. Then, when a farmhand had announced that he wanted some volunteers to help him hand-feed some of the lambs, Rachel and Kirsty had jumped at the chance!

Rachel put the lamb down carefully, and both girls watched him gambol off to join the other lambs in the field.

'I saw a sign for 'Pets Corner' over there, Rachel said, with a meaningful look at Kirsty. 'Shall we go there next?' Kirsty smiled at her friend, picking up on Rachel's message at once. The two girls shared a wonderful secret: they'd been helping the Pet Keeper Fairies of Fairyland all week! Nasty Jack Frost had kidnapped the Pet Fairies' seven magical pets and had taken them all to his ice castle.
