'I love Blossom Hall!' Kirsty Tate sighed happily, as she finished off a delicious bowl of fruit and cereal.

She was sitting on the sunny terrace of the hotel restaurant with her best friend Rachel Walker and their parents. The two families were spending the week at the old Tudor house which was now a hotel, over the Easter holiday. The sky was blue, and the pink and white cherry trees in the gardens were in full bloom.

'It's lovely, Rachel agreed.

'Did you find the Fairy Garden yesterday?' Mrs Tate asked. Rachel and Kirsty nodded.

'It was magic!' Rachel said, and she and Kirsty grinned at each other.

The two girls shared a very special secret. On a previous holiday they had become friends with the fairies.

Yesterday, in the hotel garden, they had met Tia the Tulip Fairy, and begun a whole new fairy adventure.

'What do you want to do today?' asked Mr Walker.

'We'd like to explore inside Blossom Hall this morning,' Rachel said eagerly.

'I can't wait to look around,' Kirsty added. 'Mum, please can we-'

'Yes, you can leave the table if you've finished,' Mrs Tate laughed.

'All the more bacon and eggs for me!' Mr Walker said teasingly as the girls got up.

Laughing, Rachel and Kirsty left the restaurant and set off down one of the winding corridors, looking at the pictures on the walls. One of them showed a pretty village green. 'That's Blossom Village isn't it?' Rachel nodded.
