Book: Heather the Violet Fairy

Message on a Kite

'I can't believe this is the last day of our holiday!' said Rachel Walker. She gazed up at her kite as it rose in the clear blue sky.

Kirsty Tate watched the purple kite soar above the field beside Mermaid Cottage. 'But we still have to find Heather!' she reminded Rachel. Jack Frost's wicked spell had banished the seven Rainbow Fairies to Rainspell Island. And without the Rainbow Fairies, Fairyland had no colour! Kirsty and Rachel had already found Ruby, Amber, Saffron, Fern, Sky and Izzy. Now there was just Heather the Violet Fairy left to find.

Rachel felt the kite tug on its string. She looked up. Something violet and silver flashed at the end of the kite's long tail. 'Look up there!' she shouted. Kirsty shaded her eyes with her hand.

'What is it? Do you think it's a fairy?' she asked.

'I'm not sure,' Rachel said, winding in the string.

As the kite came bobbing towards them, Kirsty saw that a long piece of violet-coloured ribbon was tied to its tail. She helped Rachel to untie the ribbon and smooth it out.

'It has tiny silver coloured writing on it,' Rachel said.

Kirsty crouched down to have a closer look. 'It says, Follow me.' Suddenly the ribbon was lifted up by the breeze. It fluttered across the field.

'It must be leading us to Heather!' Kirsty said, jumping up.
