

Book: Destiny the Pop Star Fairy

Christmas Angels

“I can’t believe that we’re really going to meet Serena, Emilia and Lexy!” Kirsty Tate said for the hundredth time that day. “Neither can I!” smiled her best friend Rachel Walker.

Kirsty squeezed Rachel’s hand as they stood in the entrance to their hotel suite with their parents. The girls had won a competition to meet their favourite girl band, The Angels.

They were staying overnight in The Grand Hotel and they were going to get a makeover from the band’s stylists, help the band to turn on the city’s Christmas lights and go to The Angels’ Christmas charity concert the following evening!

“This is almost as exciting as one of our fairy adventures!” Kirsty whispered to her best friend. No one else knew that they had a special friendship with the king and queen of Fairyland.

Kirsty and Rachel had had many adventures with the fairies as they tried to stop mean Jack Frost and his naughty goblin servants from making mischief.

“This reminds me of the palace in Fairyland!” said Rachel, looking around with wide eyes. “It’s so beautiful!”

“Oh, Rachel, look!” cried Kirsty. On a table in a corner of their room was the largest bunch of flowers the girls had ever seen, with a handwritten card on top.

While their parents unpacked, Kirsty and Rachel explored the enormous hotel suite. Their favourite room was the lounge. It was covered in red and gold Christmas decorations, and in the middle was a huge Christmas tree that filled the room with the scent of pine.

“Oh, Kirsty, look at the tiny bells hanging from the branches!” cried Rachel.

As she spoke, the tree seemed to shiver and the little bells tinkled. Then a burst of gold glitter cascaded down from the angel on top like a sparkling waterfall. When the whirl of glitter stopped, the girls saw a beautiful fairy sitting on a piece of red tinsel, waving at them.

“Hello,” she said in a tinkling, melodious voice. “I’m Destiny the Pop Star Fairy.”
